Jamie Cruz' Spring Dell Farm is an integral and crucial part of the Littleton Community as a whole. It would be a travesty if the farm was turned into another housing development - farmland does not come back, once re-purposed it is lost forever. But farmland does add so much to a community - open space, wildlife habitat, and a great educational opportunity for kids - not to mention a bucolic ambiance that is a balm to the residents.

If Littleton is truly a "right to farm" community, composting should be permitted as part of normal farming activity - it certainly is on sustainable and regenerative farms. The Littleton Planning Board should grant Spring Dell Farm a special permit allowing non-food composting and expansion of the landscaping business.
